

RUTH FIELDING SERIES

By ALICE B. EMERSON

12mo. Cloth. Illustrated. Price per volume 25c.
Ruth Fielding is a character that will live in juvenile fiction.

RUTH FIELDING OF THE RED MILL

Telling how Ruth, an orphan girl, came to live with her miserly uncle, and how the girl's sunny disposition melted the old miser's heart. A great flood, and the disappearance of the miser's treasure box, add to the interest of the volume.

RUTH FIELDING AT BRIARWOOD HALL

Ruth was sent by her uncle to boarding school to get an education. She made many friends and also one enemy, and the latter made much trouble for her. The mystery of the school campus is a most unusual one.

RUTH FIELDING AT SNOW CAMP

A thrilling tale of adventure in the backwoods in winter. How Ruth went to the camp, and how she fell in with some very strange people is told in a manner to interest every girl.

RUTH FIELDING AT LIGHTHOUSE POINT

From boarding school the scene is shifted to the Atlantic Coast, where Ruth goes for a summer vacation with some chums. There is a storm and a wreck, and Ruth aids in rescuing a girl from the sea.

RUTH FIELDING AT SILVER RANCH

A story with a western flavor—but one which is up-to-date and free from mere sensationalism. How the girls came to the rescue of Bashful Ike, the cowboy, and aided him and Sally, his "gal," is told in a way that is most absorbing.

WHY PEOPLE SHOULD OWN AND READ BOOKS

"Books should be owned and read for the same reasons that other necessities and desirable possessions are purchased and retained. Mind and soul require development and reinforcement equally with the body, and no man or woman is normal who does not recognize the needs of the spirit and provide for it the refreshment necessary for its sustenance and growth.

"It is doubtful if a borrowed book has the same effect and influence on its reader as a book that is a personal possession. Its reading is apt to be that of a casual acquaintanceship rather than responsive friendship, and when returned, is very often as promptly out of mind as out of sight. But a book of one's own selection, bought with one's own money, read with the joy of ownership, and kept on the table or put on the shelf, grows day by day an ever dearer friend.

"Here are people who at times have to make a choice between books and bread. There are times when the bread needed is—books."

THE LITTLE GIRL SERIES

By AMANDA M. DOUGLAS
All Copyright Stories

Handsome Cloth Binding
A series of stories for girls by that popular author, Amanda M. Douglas, in which are described something of the life and times of the early days of the places wherein the stories are located. Now for the first time published in a cheap edition.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD NEW YORK
This is a pretty story of life in New York 60 years ago. The story is charmingly told. The book is full of vivid narrative, describing the amusements, employments and the social and domestic life of Old New York.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD BOSTON
The story deals with the bringing up of little Doris by these Boston people, who were her nearest relatives. It is a series of pictures of life in Boston ninety years ago.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD BALTIMORE
This tells the story of how a little girl grew up in a Southern city a hundred years ago. A host of characters of all sorts—women, children, slaves, rich people and poor people, fill the pages.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD PITTSBURGH
An interesting picture is given of the pioneer settlement and its people; while the heroine, Daffodil, is a winsome lass who develops into a charming woman.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD LONG ISLAND
This story is a sequel to A Little Girl in Old New York. This is a book for girls and boys of the present age, who will enjoy going back to the old times.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD CHICAGO
Ruth Gaynor comes to Chicago with her father when she is but eight or nine years old. Ruth is a keen observer and makes a capital heroine.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD NEW ORLEANS
The story gives a very picturesque account of the life in the old Creole city. It is a well told and interesting story with a historical background.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD SAN FRANCISCO
This is the story of the little Maine girl who went to live in the strange new city of the Golden Gate; she grows up a bright and charming girl.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD WASHINGTON
This story carries one back to Washington, a city then in its infancy. The story throws a strong light on the early customs and life of the people.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD PHILADELPHIA
Little Primrose was a child of Friends, or Quakers. The author tells Primrose's experiences among very strict Quakers, and then among worldly people.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD QUEBEC
The heroine is called "The Rose of Quebec." The picturesque life of this old French city, as seen through the eyes of the little girl, is here pictured.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD SALEM
Cynthia Leveritt lived in old Salem about one hundred years ago. Cynthia grows up, and so dear a girl could scarce have failed to have a romance develop. The book will be enjoyed by all girls.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD ST. LOUIS
This story will give a delightful treat to any girl who reads it. The early days of this historical old city are depicted in a manner at once true and picturesque.

A LITTLE GIRL IN OLD DETROIT
The stirring times in which the little girl lived, and the social life of a bygone age are depicted very happily. The heroine is a charming girl.

ernof sarcastically referred to Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic nominee for United States Senator from Illinois, as "that noble advocate of pure politics and the square deal."

Tolls Policy Unpatriotic.
The governor referred to the Panama tolls repeal act as an "unjustified and wholly unwarranted sacrifice of our sovereignty over the Panama canal in order to ingratiate ourselves with the people of a foreign land to whom we are in no wise indebted for our liberty or our privileges as a people breathing the air of freedom."

Notwithstanding the declaration of the president that the depression is "psychological," Governor Hatfield quoted from a trade journal that "there are at least one million working men idle in the nation as compared with the pay roll of one year prior to the inauguration of the new national administration," and cited this as a "characteristic condition for a Democratic administration." "The Democratic administration in its short tenure has demonstrated its inability to meet the conditions that confront the people of this nation," said Governor Hatfield. "The bar of tariff protection have been torn down with a false idea as to economic problems. Idleness has come as the Democratic substitute for activity and prosperity and no where has it brought with it cheaper living."

SALEM FACTORY

Operations Are Handicapped Owing to Inability of Workmen to Get Back.

Work at the plant of the Modern Window Glass Company at Salem is badly handicapped because of the inability of many of its workmen to get back to this country from visits in Belgium. Such is the information sent by the company to Congressman Neely, who is asked to do what can be done to get them back, not only because of the company's needs but also because the families of those abroad have joined in the request. Only a couple of those for whose return the assistance of the government has been asked are American citizens, some having taken out their first papers and others having relied on long residence in this country.

Moss's Record Praised.
Referring to the candidacy of Judge Hunter H. Moss for re-election to Congress from the Fourth district, Governor Hatfield referred to him as a man "who has served the people of the Fourth district faithfully and well. Not only should the candidacy of Judge Moss appeal to the people upon the higher meritorious record he has made in Congress, but it should be a matter of pride to the people of Parkersburg and of Wood county that one of their number has gained the recognition in Congress that has come to the brilliant young West Virginian in the first term of his incumbency. He has given his loyal support and active efforts in behalf of the people. He has shown an aptitude of perception that has won instant admiration, and his interpretation and discussion of measures have given evidence of his high attainments. No partisanism has marred his record and he has truly acted as a representative of the whole people."

"What is true of Judge Moss is likewise true of our distinguished

Congressman Neely has also been asked for information, if it can be had by the State Department, concerning August Faville, of Fairmont, a Belgian last heard from at Charleroi, Belgium, where he had gone on a visit. His family in Fairmont is said to be in distress, with his wife compelled to work in a factory to support her children.

and able nominee for congressman-at-large, Honorable Howard Sutherland. Both have been progressive in action and they have been loyal servants of West Virginia and her people. They have truly and honestly represented the state, and it would be no less than a discouraging result for those who give their honest efforts for the public service, to fail to send them back to Congress.

"Congressman Moss and Congressman Sutherland are men in whose hands the public affairs can always be entrusted, and I bespeak and solicit for them from all who are interested in good government, loyal and vigorous support."
